University of Sydney New Pharmacy Degrees in 2023

From 2023, the University of Sydney will offer new combined degrees for school leavers who want to study pharmacy.

You will now gain a Bachelors and Masters degree, as well as completing the intern training program and supervised practice requirements, in the same amount of time that would take to complete a standalone undergraduate degree and complete the Pharmacy Board of Australia's requirements.

- Bachelor of Pharmacy \(Honours\) / Master of Pharmacy Practice (5 years)
- Bachelor of Pharmacy and Management \(Honours\) / Master of Pharmacy Practice (6 years)

Upon completing one of the combined degrees, you won't need to undertake any further supervised practice after you graduate, in order to practise pharmacy. However, you will still need to pass the Pharmacy Board registration exam to be eligible for general registration.

Find out more about the new degrees on offer here: <https://www.sydney.edu.au/medicine-health/study-medicine-and-health/study-areas/pharmacy/introducing-our-new-pharmacy-degrees-2023.html>

UCAT ANZ for Medicine and Dentistry in 2023

The University Clinical Aptitude Test is a compulsory test that you may have to sit in order to apply for some degrees in the fields of Medicine or Dentistry. It is designed to help universities select applicants with the appropriate abilities and professional behaviours required to practice successfully as a doctors or dentists. It is used in collaboration with other admissions processes, such as interviews and academic qualifications.

13 of the universities in Australia offering Medicine and Dentistry, and two in New Zealand, will require you to sit the UCAT ANZ test as part of your application. So, if you're thinking of applying to uni in 2023 for a degree in one of those fields, you should check the entry requirements as soon as possible, to find out if taking the UCAT ANZ is necessary.

Registrations for concession and access schemes are open now. Bookings open on 1 March 2021 and close on 17 May. You'll sit the tests between 1 July and 12 August 2022. Results will be delivered to the universities in early September.

It costs $305 to sit the test ($199 concession fee, but you only have until 10 May to register for concession prices).

Additional information about dates, fees and how to register can be found here.

Searching for your dream course

Looking for the perfect course to study? Going through every single university website, and seeing if they offer the course you want, can be tedious.

Thankfully, you don't have to do that. This is where Course Seeker comes in.

What is Course Seeker?

Course Seeker is a comprehensive database of tertiary courses on offer from universities and private providers across the country.

It makes it easy to find your dream course. You can filter your search by subject area, location, duration, qualification level, institution type, and more.

You can also see the entry requirements for each course, so you can work out which courses you might be eligible for, in a flash.

You also get other handy info, like the course duration, whether you can study part-time, and the campuses where the course is offered.

You can also add courses to your shortlist, which lets you easily compare them when you're trying to make a decision. In your shortlist, you can also compare indicative course fees, whether or not Commonwealth Supported Places (CSPs) are available, and if there are any prerequisites, plus more.

And if you click on a course, you can see all the information you'll need, including majors, extended admissions criteria, the date the course will start next, and more.

Most General Practitioners work in the Health Care and Social Assistance industry.

How to become a General Practitioner in Australia

Becoming a GP is quite a long and involved process. You will need to complete an accredited university-level qualification, before completing an internship and further specialist training.

Step 1 – Complete Year 12 with a focus on English and Maths. Biology, Chemistry and Physics might also be useful.

Step 2 – Complete an Ahpra-approved medical program. This can be at either undergraduate or postgraduate level. You can find a full list of approved qualifications here.

Step 3 – Complete a period of accredited intern training to become eligible for general registration.

Step 4 – Complete a fellowship qualification from either RACGP or ACCRM.

Step 5 – Once you've finished your fellowship, apply for specialist registration with Ahpra.

Step 6 – Start working as a fully qualified GP.

Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs)

What do General Practitioners do?

General Practitioners are responsible for the general care and wellbeing of their patients. While they may not be able to treat specialised problems, they can guide patients on almost all general ailments and injuries.

What options are there for career progression?

Becoming a General Practitioner takes time, and for many people it is the end goal for their career. However, you might like to specialise even further down the line, and work in Paediatrics, Obstetrics and Gynaecology, Oncology, Radiology, Pathology, or more.

Do I need to go to university to become a General Practitioner?

Yes, you will need to go to university and complete thorough additional training before you are qualified to practise as a GP in Australia. This process can take anywhere between 10-15 years.

Where do General Practitioners work?

There is demand for GPs across all of Australia, particularly in rural and regional areas. There might be less competition for jobs in these areas.

What are three things I can do right now to help me become a General Practitioner?

If you're in high school and you'd like to find out if a career as a General Practitioner is right for you, here's a few things you could do right now:

1. Start researching university options as soon as possible. The application process can be involved and you need to check prerequisites carefully. Our Entry to Medicine Guide is a great place to start.
2. See if you can find work experience in a health-related setting. This will help you see if you might enjoy the work, and can help you start building important contacts for the future.
3. Talk to a GP to see what a day in their life is like. If you don't know anyone, see if you can watch videos or documentaries about a career in medicine.
